THE FAMILY FARM

The family farm is still dominant in the grain belt of western Canada where most of the nation's food is produced. It is the family farm which will operate a permanent agriculture. The nation should reaffirm its traditional confidence in the family farmer and boldly and consistently strengthen him. Factory type, industrial farming has had many chances over the years to prove itself. It has not shown any progress in the form of corporations and the high production areas show stubborn resistance to factory farms of any type or management.—Wheat Pool Budget

Wedding Bells

PETERSON—WHITFIELD

The parish church of St. Paul, Thornaby on Tees, Yorkshire, England, was the scene of the wedding recently when Joan Kathryn Whitfield, youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Whitfield, became the bride of LAC. A. K. Peterson, youngest son of Mrs. A. E. Peterson, of Irma.

The bride, given in marriage, by her father, was attired in white with a deep red rose and carried deep red roses. Her sister, Mary, dressed in pink, carrying pink tulips and her sister, Betty, in blue, carrying pink roses, were bridesmaids. There also were two little flower girls.

The groom was fortunate in having former schoolmates, Cpl. C. Carter, RCAF, as best man, and F/O Robt. Simmerman, RCAF, as groomsmen.

The wedding reception was held in the church hall after which the happy couple left for a week's honeymoon at the seaside resort of Scarborough.

The groom in this happy event arrived home last week on thirty days leave, after which he will report for duty at Yarmouth, N.S. It is expected Mrs. Peterson will arrive here before a great while.

Bank of Montreal Crop Report No. 3

In the Prairie Provinces the weather has continued cool and growth has been slow. The most urgent need now is warm weather. Where moisture conditions are satisfactory early sown wheat is healthy and even. Moisture is lacking in some parts of Alberta and Saskatchewan and crop conditions in these areas vary from only fair to good. Weed infestation is heavy in some districts. Cutworms are active in a few localities, but damage to date has been slight. Pasture is improving. Sugar beet thinning is general. In the Province of Quebec, seeding and planting are now well advanced after prolonged delay, owing to wet, cold weather. The season is from two to three weeks later than average. Hay and pasture lands are in good condition and a satisfactory crop of hay is indicated. Root crops show little growth and planting is not yet completed. Warm dry weather is urgently needed. In Ontario, weather conditions have been more favourable during the past two weeks and prospects have improved materially, but the season remains at least two weeks later than usual. Spring grains generally are now doing well and planting of corn, roots and other late crops is proceeding rapidly. Hay and pastures are making satisfactory progress. Transplanting of tobacco is practically completed. In the Maritime Provinces, conditions have been more favourable during the past week, following wet and cool weather. Seeding and planting are now well advanced in most districts. The season is about two weeks later than normal. Hay and pasture lands are generally in good condition. Further warm, dry weather is needed. In British Columbia, prospects continue generally favourable for good average tree fruit and small fruit crops. Vegetable and field crops are late but are promising. Low night temperatures and lack of sunshine have further retarded a backward season.

ALBERTA - Crop conditions range from fair to good. Growth is slow and warm weather is needed in all districts. Following recent rains, moisture at present is adequate except in northern and eastern areas, where additional precipitation is required. Weed growth is heavy. Pasture and hay crops are fair. Sugar beet thinning is general.

SASKATCHEWAN - In areas where moisture conditions are satisfactory, early sown crops are well rooted and are showing an even, healthy growth. Although showers have been general, parts of the central, south-central, west-central and extreme north-western areas are in need of more rain; conditions there vary from only fair to good. Warm weather to offset the late season is also required throughout the province. Weed growth is heavy in some districts.

Carl Anquist, Local Dealer, Irma, Alberta

IN A RECENT ARTICLE PUBLISHED by the British Ministry of Information, some of the facts relating to Britain's part in the Allied victory in Europe are reviewed and a number of interesting details concerning her mighty war effort are made known. Events move so quickly in these times that public attention is constantly directed to new situations and it is not surprising that the British people have not been fully aware that Britain remained firm in the days when they alone stood the way of complete victory for the conquering German and Italian armies in Western Europe. Had they given up at that time, the liberation of Europe would have been delayed for many years, and would have been doubtfully difficult to accomplish. Five years ago, Mr. Churchill told the nation that "blood and tears" lay ahead and the article states that this promise was repeated by the British people "in the greatest unspoken contract in history."

defeat of German military security prevented the publication of many details concerning the British war effort. It is now known, however, that 5,500,000 men of military age served in the armed forces of the United Kingdom. This represented more than one in every nine persons in the entire population. Casualties in the services are given as one out of every ten men. Up to the end of August, 1944, civilian casualties due to enemy action totalled 87,000 killed and 79,000 injured. One out of every three homes in Britain were destroyed or damaged by enemy action, 202,000 civilian deaths came up to the end of September 1944. Racial riots and attacks, which came after "D" Day damaged or destroyed over one million homes.

proportions. From these factories came seventy per cent. of all the arms and equipment for the United Kingdom, Dominions, Indian and Colonial forces until "D" Day, and one-third of all the equipment of the United States forces in the European theatre from June, 1942, to June, 1944. In addition, up to June 1944, $1,200,000,000 worth of supplies including fighter planes and tanks had been sent to Russia. During the German occupation of Europe, Britain was the rallying point for patriots from all parts of the Continent and British leaders did much to unify the great United Nations front against Nazi tyranny. Britain's war effort is now being directed towards the liberation of Japan. When peace is restored, there will remain the great task of world reconstruction and the writer for the British Ministry of Information says: "In this work Great Britain, in concert with her fellow nations of the Commonwealth, is prepared to shoulder the same responsibilities of leadership which have seen the world through its greatest military crisis."

OUR COMPLETE SHORT STORY—EASY DOES IT

By M. T. GRIFFIN

McClure Newspaper Syndicate

Edna Benton was less than halfway to the Point when she dropped her bag scattering on the windmill. "Damn!" she muttered. Night driving was bad enough, but driving in the rain—it was getting chilly, too. She had nothing over her wool dress. When Paul called at eight to say that he was marooned in a crazy little place called Harper's Point, and that he had just missed the only night train, she had answered gayly. "Don't worry, old dear, I'm already on the way. See you within an hour." And she had hopped into the car just as she was.

It was a surprise to have Paul returning so soon. He had expected to be away four or five days, and now here he was coming back after only two. The car was in the shop when he left. She was glad the repairs were finished in time for him. The rain was coming down heavily now. She drew over to the curb and looked in the back seat for a possible wrap. Ah, Paul's jacket. Just the thing. She pulled it out gratefully. It smelled of strong tobacco, and one of his many pipes was in the pocket. She drove more slowly as she left the city lights behind her. Out this far people were apt to be walking in the road, and she could not see very well through the driving rain.

She was well out in the country when her headlights picked out the figure of a woman walking ahead of her. It was a funny sight. She was holding a newspaper over her head in a vain attempt to keep dry. On an impulse Edna stopped. "Throw away the make-believe umbrella and hop in," she cried.

"Gee, thanks!" She was dripping water all over the car floor. "Wish you'd happened along about a mile back. This bonnet of mine set me back four hard-earned dollars." She had removed the hat and was gazing ruefully at it. "And look at it now." Edna looked. It was a bright red straw top-heavy with trimming. I wouldn't give four cents for it, Edna thought. Aloud she said, "Pretty drooping looking, all right." Then, "Do you usually go walking in the rain?"

"Only way you can get anywhere around here is walk," said the woman. "Say, this is a pretty nice bus you've got, dearie. Don't you think it's a little bit risky picking up strangers? After all, you're just a kid, you know, and it's pretty lonely around these parts."

"I can take care of myself," said Edna. But already she regretted her impulsive act. She stole a glance at her guest. Hard-boiled, she thought, and her heart began to pound heavily. The woman kept up a stream of small talk. Edna responded brightly, consoling herself with the thought, She'll be getting off at the next house, sure. Houses were few and far between, but they came and went and still her passenger made no move.

It was when they reached the wooded stretch that Edna missed her bag. It had been lying in her lap, and now there was nothing there. Nothing at all. Her hands were moist on the steering wheel and her lips were dry. She didn't have a cent. And Paul worked so hard for it. What would he say? She had only herself to blame for this. Then a wave of relief swept over her. The bag must have fallen to the floor. She slowed the car and peered down hopefully. But nothing—nothing anywhere.

"Drop something?" asked the voice beside her. Edna did not answer. She couldn't. She thought, It must have happened when I turned to wind up the window. This was a dangerous woman. Edna dared not move. She didn't have an image, her mind in a whirl, her pounding heart suffocating her. A month's house money. She had to get it back. Suddenly she had an idea.

She brought the car to a halt with grinding brakes, dropped her hand into the pocket of the jacket, jabbed the stop of Paul's pipe into the woman's side and said, "I'm a curious calm voice. Drop the bag, sister, and get going!"

It was ridiculously easy. She heard the woman's quick intake of breath, the thud of the bag falling on the floor, and the bang of the car door. Then she was speeding, speeding.

"Oh, Paul," she said tearfully, as she drew up beside him. "It sure is good to see you, too," said Paul, "but what's the matter, Kitten? You look funny."

"Get in and I'll tell you," she was sliding out of the driver's seat.

"Here, take this with you," he said, picking up the sofa pillow she always sat on. Then, "Hello! A new place for this, isn't it?"

"For what?" she asked, turning. He was holding something in his hand. For a moment she just sat there stricken. It was her pocket-book. Now she remembered putting it under the pillow when she stopped to get the jacket. She clapped her hand over her mouth to hold back a scream.

"Edna, for Pete's sake, what is it?" shouted Paul.

For answer she snapped on the car light. There on the floor at her feet lay a bright red patent leather bag.

Quinine Still Scarce

Java The Only World Source Is Held By Japanese

Quinine, the drug essential in combating malaria, continues one of the most acute supply shortages. Munitions Department officials said. When the Japs took Java in early 1942, with it went the only world source of quinine. The Allies had a stockpile but it was not large enough to give assurance of adequate supplies and against it was an increasing demand.

The development of air routes over malaria-infested areas, fighting in Africa and the Pacific war itself meant new demands for quinine. Intensified fighting in the Pacific is going to mean a further increase in these requirements, and so far synthetic substitutes have not gone far in meeting the call, so the Allied stockpile continues to be the main source, and it is going down.

HOG PRODUCTION DECLINES

Reflecting sharp reductions in the United States and Canada, the world's hog production declined about 10 per cent during last year to complicate the problem of stretching meat supplies over a war-weary world, the office of foreign agricultural relations at Washington said.

Did Not Like It

But German Field Marshal Took Orders From British Bomberdier Field Marshal von Milch, one time successor to Goering, and General Hasso von Manteuffel, former commander of the German Third Panzer Army, are in a Lüneburg prison camp, where officially they live on Army rations.

But they are eating these out with champagne, eggs and cutlards brought to them almost daily by women admirers and friends.

German girls stand outside the gates in groups, hoping to get the general's autographs. Once von Milch was impatient as not being able to go for his walk at the time he wished. A guard Bomberdier Hadley, from Durham, told him to wait.

"Who are you to give an order to a field marshal?" snorted Milch. "I'm a bomberdier in the British Army," said Hadley—London Daily Express.

fouled the air of Port St. John on the night of Victory Day, when the beautiful cenotaph, decked with flags and the United Nations, erected by patriotic hands, was bashed in and defaced by hoodlums, bitterly comments the Alaska Highway News.

The best response to the travelling X-ray unit of the Manitoba Sanatorium board was at Dauphin in May, when a total of 7,541 persons from the town and surrounding district received chest X-rays in 13 days. 91.1 per cent of the urban population "got took".

Premontion: Sgt. W. J. Maltland, D.F.M., son of B.C.'s Attorney General, lost his life in action last year in the skies over Germany. His mother, searching through his boyhood scrapbook, recently found this poem written by her son when he was twelve years of age, which foretold the war and his death. That was only six years ago. Canadians can well read this and think:

"We are the heroes of the air. We fight and laugh and die and roar; To come near us no foe would dare. For such a stream of lead we pour. "Our planes go crashing to the ground; Our men fear not the sight of Hell. And some of us lie beneath a mound. Who for their King and Country fell. "Oh how the dusky tempest blew And the battle in the sky kept on. As through the air the bullets flew Until the brightness of the dawn."

TWAS ON THE ISLE OF CAPRI—

First Canadian servicewoman to be posted to an active theatre of operations, was Capt. Cynthia Oakley, formerly of Toronto, who spent five and one half years overseas in England and Italy. Highlight of her stay in Italy was a surprise visit from her sister, Sgt. Helen Oakley of the United States Women's Army Corps, who is stationed in Algeria. "She hitch-hiked by plane and just walked in on me one day at work," Capt. Oakley explained. The sisters spent several happy days together on the song-famous Isle of Capri, a welcome interlude from army work. Capt. Oakley returned to England when the Canadian troops were moved out of Italy. She has since been returned to Canada and is now employed in the Directorate of Military Training in Ottawa.

RETIRED—

Lt.-Col. Mary J. Doyer, special assistant to the D.A.G. (C), has recently been retired from the Canadian Women's Army Corps. Lt.-Col. Doyer is the daughter of the late Mr. A. E. Cross and Mrs. Cross, of Calgary, Alta., and the wife of Major Melville Grant Doyer, Ceylon manager of the Ford Motor Company of India, Ltd., recently returned to Canada after serving in the Ceylon Garrison Artillery. Col. Doyer has had a colourful career both in the C.W.A.C., and before she received her appointment to the Corps. On the completion of her schooling she went to England on a short trip with her parents. In 1928 she started on a world tour which it was on that trip that she met her husband in Bombay. They were married in Calgary in April, 1930. Following their marriage, they returned to Bombay, and for the next two years, Mrs. Doyer travelled extensively with her husband in India and Burma. In 1933 their son David was born. In June, 1939, Mrs. Doyer and David returned to Calgary. After the outbreak of war she became chairman of three federal ridings, Calgary East, Calgary West and Bow Valley for the National Registration of Women. DISABLED WAR VETERANS

Employers must develop an approach toward war disabled in which men are placed in jobs on the basis of ability rather than by the measure of their disability. Maj. E. A. Dunlop, supervisor of the casualty section of the Veterans Affairs Department, said before a meeting of the Dominion of Canada Council of Foremen's Clubs.

Use of warm colors such as yellow, cream and brown in painting a room will give the room the illusion of added warmth. Use of blues and greens will make it feel cooler than it actually is.

HELP ON THE FARMS

In spite of the fact that one half of our global war is over, there is still, and is likely to be for the whole of this year, a serious shortage of labour on Western farms. The hungry people of Europe, and almost all countries, are clamouring for food. Then there are still great needs by our own and our Allies' Armed Forces.

While we have plenty of wheat in Canada, there is, even in the United States and Canada, a shortage of livestock and livestock products, because of their high nutritional value, that are needed most by the Armed Forces and by European people. The production of livestock and livestock products, as we all know, requires more labour than the production of grains alone. The amount of grains therefore, that will be fed to livestock will depend, to some extent at least, upon the labour available. The past war years have shown that students from our High Schools and Universities, during their vacations, have helped in producing livestock and livestock products by working on our prairie farms. I suggest that students once again this year should consider making this same important and valuable contribution to Canada's war effort. Life on a farm during the summer months is agreeable and interesting and the work will not be found to be too hard.

"It is not cenotaphs and plaques nor statues and honor rolls, Canadians are planning but community centres, schools, scholarships which shall bring to the new generations new vision of what freedom means, new understanding of peace, new skill in the arts of it."—Col. C.G.D. Kilpatrick.

WHAT ARE THOSE ARMY PATCHES?

Now that our men are coming back from overseas in considerable number, people spend a lot of time trying to figure out what their battle patches mean. There are two kinds, rectangular for divisions and diamond-shaped for corps. The rectangular ones are red for the First Canadian Infantry Division; dark blue for the Second, light blue for the Third, and green for the Fourth. The Fifth Canadian Division has maroon patches.

The diamond-shaped patches are black with a horizontal red stripe for the First Canadian Armored Brigade, and black with a blue stripe for the Second Canadian Armored Brigade. Canadian military staff personnel in London wear a black circular patch with a gold border and a gold maple leaf inset.

Some veterans are wearing British Army patches of the 21st Army Group. One is a red shield with a blue cross inset, and other the red and blue patch with crossed swords worn by headquarters personnel of the 21st Army Group.

NOW LAWNS FREQUENTLY

According to A.C. Hallman, Supervisor of the Farmstead Planning Service, high quality and vigour of turf depend largely on the density of the grass leaves left growing after mowing. Frequent mowing tends to shorten the stems so that the leaves spring from underground stems and multiply at the ground surface to produce a fine dense turf. The more often a lawn is mown, the closer it may be mown with safety, and the finer and denser the turf will become. A lawn mowed every two weeks should not be cut closer than two inches. If mowed every week a height of 1 1/4 inches is enough, and if cut twice a week the cutting may be as close as 3/4 to 1 inch. Intervals between mowings will depend somewhat on rate of growth. During cool, cloudy weather, or during hot dry days there is less growth than when plenty of moisture and sunshine is available. Mowing intervals should be governed accordingly.

The more frequent the mowing, the more easily the work is done. The satisfaction derived from a pleasing turf will more than outweigh the little extra time required by more frequent mowing.

A man called on a lawyer to make out his will recently and insisted a final request should be put in the will that his Ford car be buried with him. "Why in the dickens do you want your Ford car buried with you?" asked the lawyer. "Because I never have got in a hole yet but what my Ford car could pull me out," was the reply.

EGGS—ANY STYLE PUT "BEEF" IN YOU

This morning on a million breakfast tables, eggs started Canadians on another busy day.

Many people feel that they cannot face an egg first thing in the morning, and the Nutrition Division says that whether you eat eggs in the morning, at noon or at night, or how they are cooked, matters not at all. The important thing is that you do eat at least the three or four eggs a week recommended by Canada's Food Rules.

The eggs that occasionally substitute for the daily serving of meat or fish—there should be two of them—are extras. You cheat yourself if you count them among the three or four a week.

Suppose you have two eggs instead of a serving of roast beef. The eggs will provide as much thiamine and iron, more riboflavin, but only two-thirds as much protein. However, the eggs add something extra in the form of more than one-third of the day's needs of vitamin A.

RADIOGRAMS

Boys and girls are great believers in hero worship. Sports idols abound in the hearts and minds of kiddies everywhere. The war brought forth other idols—the big brother in uniform, or daddy, or a great general.

Youthful listeners to a new program broadcast daily over CICA now have another idol. She is known over the airwaves as Pat, the Playmates' Pal. She rallies the children around her, via radio, and tells them a story—tells them about some of the kiddies' activities around town—the Gyro Playgrounds—the children's room in the city library, etc. And to top it all she presents one or two youthful vocal artists on each program.

A city dairy, a service club and the public library are jointly interested in the program.

Heard at the neighbors. Pa: "It's two o'clock. About time Sally's boy friend went home." Ma: "Now then Pa—just remember how we used to court." Pa: "That settles it. Out he goes."

One of the local boys who joined the navy recently sent his first letter home. It said: "Dear Ma: I joined the navy because I admired the way the ships were kept so clean and tidy. But I never knew until this week who keeps them so clean and tidy.—Love, Junior."

"I personally think we have come to a time now when, out of this victory which has been achieved at the cost of so many lives, we should ensure that those lives which have come through are made better, that the dependents of those who are gone should be cared for by the nation."—Rt. Hon. William Lyon Mackenzie King.

NOW is the Time to Deliver Your Wheat Through Pool Elevators

For the remainder of the present crop year, that is, up to July 31, farmers may deliver any quantity of wheat they wish. After July 31, however, the 1945-46 delivery quota of 14 bushels per authorized acre will be in effect. This quota, set by the Wheat Board, will apply throughout the province and deliveries will be definitely limited to the amounts allowed to each farmer under it.

Now is the time, therefore, to get your wheat delivered, unless you want to keep it on your farm as a reserve. The place to take it is your local Pool elevator. It is your your elevator, built by you to give service at cost. It will be to your advantage to use it.

ELECTRICITY TAKES THE SMALLEST PORTION OF THE COST-OF-LIVING DOLLAR

With the cost-of-living dollar being called upon to go much farther nowadays, it is interesting to note the very small and gradually decreasing portion that is allotted for Electric Service.

This insignificant amount has always been one of the smallest items on the family budget, and while today other prices show no such trend, the average cost of your Residential Electricity is actually 36% below what it was in 1931.

This company is proud of its achievement in having bettered the service to its customers and at the same time lowered its cost.
